

A Grade V Field Visit to Gram Sanskruti Udyan Village Park

Pune, Maharashtra | 11th October, 2024

On the 11th of October, 2024, the students of Grade V embarked on an educational field trip to Gram Sanskruti Udyan, Pune's first mock village park. This unique destination showcases the essence of rural life in India, complete with meticulously crafted statues and immersive surroundings.

Gram Sanskruti Udyan is designed to depict traditional village life and features representations of various aspects of rural living, including village economy, daily chores, and the local market. The park is adorned with a grand entrance featuring a statue of Chhatrapati Shivaji Maharaj, symbolizing the rich cultural heritage of

Its key features are:

1. Village Life Representation: The park features life-sized sculptures depicting villagers engaged in various daily activities, including Vasudevs, Nomads, Kirtenkars, and Varkaris. These intricate representations provide students with a vivid glimpse into the functioning of village life. Each sculpture tells a story, showcasing the roles and traditions of rural communities, and allowing students to connect with the cultural practices that define village living. This immersive experience helps them understand the dynamics of community life and the importance of each role within it.

2. Market Simulation: The area showcases how local markets operate, highlighting the exchange of goods and the importance of commerce in sustaining village economies.

3. Educational Value: Descriptions and informational plaques are primarily in Marathi, providing students an opportunity to engage with the local language and understand its significance.

The Grade V students were thrilled with their visit, taking the time to jot down observations in their diaries. They enjoyed exploring the park, which successfully stimulated their imagination about village life and its various components. Many students remarked on how the experience helped them appreciate the contributions of rural communities to the Indian economy.

The field trip to Gram Sanskruti Udyan was not only enjoyable but also educational. It provided the students with valuable insights into rural life. This experience fostered a greater appreciation for the traditions and practices of village communities, making it a memorable day for all participants.
